Nerea Molina summarises her doctoral thesis in under three minutes

22/02/2023

Last February, the University of Granada (UGR) held the seventh edition of the “3 Minute Thesis (3MT)” competition, organised by the International Postgraduate School (EIP) in collaboration with the Doctoral Studies Group of the Coimbra Group universities and the UGR’s Communications Management Office.

The semi-final of the competition took place on Monday 20 February at 5.00 pm in the Conference Hall of the UGR’s Institute of Mathematics. The event was chaired by Elena Arigita Maza, Coordinator of the Master’s Degree in Arabic and Hebrew Cultures: Al-Andalus and the Contemporary Arab World; Emilio García, Head of the Scientific Culture Unit at the Institute of Astrophysics of Andalusia; Pedro A. García Sánchez; George Julian Bourne, PhD, from the Department of Translation and Interpreting; Christine Kelly, Director of the CASA Centre in Granada; and Francisca Serrano, Director of Internationalisation at the International Postgraduate School.

Nerea Molina is taking part in the competition with her talk ‘Sharing is Caring’ and has made it through to the semi-finals.

Well done, Nerea!
