Recently, researchers from Tartu Health Care College (Estonia) – Siret Läänelaid, who is writing her doctoral thesis under the supervision of Dr Altmäe, and her colleague Marit Salus – visited Granada. During this visit, they reviewed the current status of the collaborative and supervisory projects currently underway.

This visit further consolidates the line of research into how lifestyle can affect fertility, including diet, physical activity and sport. They were also joined by Prof. Francisco Ortega, a professor at the University of Granada and an expert in physical activity and health.
